PREFACE.

THIS volume is the outcome of a search for the ancestry of Timothy Clark, an early settler of Rockingham, Vermont, undertaken by the writer in the spring of 1902, at the request of Col. Albert Clarke, of Boston, a great-grandson. The search continued for nearly two years, and resulted in establishing the descent of Timothy Clark from Richard Clarke, an original settler of Rowley, Mass., through Richard's great-grandson, Ebenezer Clark, of Mansfield, Conn. The line of descent is absolutely proved by the land records and vital statistics of Mansfield and Stafford, Conn., and Rowley, Mass., and by the Probate records of Essex County, Mass., and is further corroborated by interesting collateral proofs.

The facts in the history of this branch of the Clark family, collected during this search, were arranged in systematic form as far down as the fifth generation, and were published in the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register, for July, 1904. The sketch published in the Register has been slightly enlarged for the present work and the history of the family has been continued to the present time. An account of the family reunion held at Rochester North Hollow, Vt., August 30, 1904, at which a memorial to Timothy Clark and his son, Jonathan Rogers Clark, was dedicated with interesting ceremonies, has been added. It has been the aim to give a concise account of all the descendants of Timothy Clark in both male and female lines. If the history is not as complete in all respects as could be wished, it is because letters of inquiry in some cases have been answered briefly or not at all, and in some instances it has been found impossible to obtain a clue. All the illustrations have been made especially for the work, and add greatly to its interest and value. Many of them are reproductions of recent photographs. It was practically impossible to have all the families represented in the illustrations, so only types of the last five generations are presented, no portraits of an earlier date being in existence. The writer wishes to express his thanks to many members of the family for their prompt and courteous replies to his repeated inquiries, and especially to Colonel Clarke for his unfailing interest and coöperation and for his great liberality in assuming the entire cost of the work, including the engravings. His efforts have entitled him to the lasting gratitude of every descendant of Timothy Clark.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD CLARKE OF ROWLEY,

ROCKINGHAM, VT.

1. RICHARD<sup>1</sup> CLARKE, the progenitor of the family to which this sketch is devoted, was married in Rowley, Mass., — 6 mo, 1643, to Alice ———. They were the second couple married in that town. Nothing has been ascertained as to his previous history, but it is evident that he was an emigrant from England. He was probably one of the company that came with Rev. Ezekiel Rogers from Rowley in the East Riding of Yorkshire, England, in the autumn of 1638, and settled in Rowley, Mass., in April, 1639. Says Gov. John Winthrop: "A plantation was begun between Ipswich and Newbury. The occasion was this: Mr. Eaton and Mr. Davenport having determined to sit down at Quinipiack there came over one Mr. Ezekiel Rogers, second son of that truly faithful servant of God, Mr. Richard Rogers of Weathersfield in England, and with him some twenty families, godly men, and most of them of good estate." After relating the inducements offered to Mr. Rogers to settle in Quinipiack, he continues: "Whereupon he consulted with the elders of the bay, and, by their advice, etc., holding his former engagement released, he and his people took that place by Ipswich; and because some farms had been granted by Ipswich and Newbury, which would be prejudicial to their plantation, they bought out the owners, disbursing therein about £800." (History of New England, Vol. 1, p. 354.) The name of Richard Clarke does not appear among the owners of one and one-half acre lots, to whom assignment of rights in the commons, called "gates," was made, but in a second survey made in 1661 there was assigned to Richard Clarke, "as to an acre and a halfe lot that he purchased of Thomas Elathrope, one gate and halfe." (History of Essex County, Vol. 2, p. 1133.) "Thomas Elithorp had an acre and a half house lot on Bradford street (Rowley), 1643. This lot with rights soon became the property of Richard Clark and remains (1883) in the possession of his descendants." (Essex Institute Coll., Vol. 21, p. 78.) Nothing is known of Richard Clarke's occupation, but it is not unlikely that, beside carrying on a small farm, he was a weaver* like many of the first settlers of Rowley. He was a town officer; was overseer 1656 and 1660, and selectman in 1666.

The death of neither Richard nor Alice Clarke is recorded in Rowley, but his death occurred before Mar. 31, 1674, when his will was proved; and as his wife Alice is not mentioned, it is probable that her death preceded his.

The will of Richard Clarke, on file in Salem, Mass., a facsimile of the signature to which is reproduced, says: "Having disposed of my children in marriage and not having much to dispose yet that all Love may be continued betwixt my son and daughter my will is that my son John Clarke shall have all my stocke in cattell horses sheepe and swine and two thirds of all my provision and implements of husbandry he paying all my debts and funerall expenses. Item My will further is that my daughter Esther Hobkinson shall have all my household goods (excepting the Read Ruge that is upon my bed which I give unto my son John), and the other third part of my provision and implements of husbandry. My will further is that my son John shall be the Sole executor of this my last will: unto which I set my hand this 7th day of February 1673."

John Poore, born in Wiltshire, England, about 1615, emigrated in 1635, and settled in the part of Newbury called "The Neck," on the south side of Parker River, on the street leading from Newbury to Rowley. Nine generations of his descendants have lived in the house partly built by him.

John Clarke died Dec. 21, 1736, "aged 86 years and 9 months, of ye palsy. A good old man." (Church records.) His wife Mary died Sept. 10, 1726.

3. RICHARD<sup>3</sup> CLARKE (John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rowley, Mass., Nov. 10, 1677. He married first, Dec. 2, 1702, Abigail, daughter of John and Abigail (Kimball) Wicom, who died Oct. 17, 1722, variously spelled Wickham, Wikeham, Wickum, Wicum, Wicom. He married second, Aug. 9, 1727, Abigail, daughter of Joseph Kilborn. He died July 11, 1730, "by y<sup>e</sup> small pox."

The will of Richard Clark, on file in Salem, Mass., a facsimile of the signature to which is here given, says in part:

"Imprimis, I give and bequeath to Abigail Clark, my dearly beloved wife, one third part of my Real Estate in Housing and Lands during her natural life. Item, I give to my wife one third part of my Moveable Estate after my debts be Discharged and Expenses for my Burying.

Item, I give to my son Simon Clark and my son Ebenezer Clark all my Real Estate, both in Housing and Lands, to be equally divided between the said Simon Clark and Ebenezer Clark, both for Quantity and Quality, also my will is that my two sons: namely Simon and Ebenezer are obliged to maintain my son Richard Clark out of my estate during his natural Life and to bury him decently.

Item, I give to my son John Clark one hundred and ten Pounds to be paid out of my Estate in one year after my Decease.

Item, I give to my Daughter Abigail Clark Two hundred Pounds to be paid out of my Estate within one year after my Decease.

Item, I give to my Two Sons namely Simon and Ebenezer the Rest of my Moveable Estate that I have not given to my wife, also my will is that my Executors shall pay my Just Debts Legacies & funeral Charges out of my Estate."

The will was dated July 2, 1730, and probated Sept. 8, 1730. The inventory gives real estate £994.5.0, and personal property £83.10.2. Later, the estate was increased by £150, and debts were proved to the amount of £227. 11s. 7d., which made the net amount £1000.4s. This was one of the largest estates in Essex County at that time.

On Mar. 28, 1738, John Collier, of Grafton, Mass., deeded a tract of 100 acres in Stafford, Conn., to Simon Clark of Rowley, Mass. On Dec. 25, 1739, Simon Clark deeded one half of this tract to his brother Ebenezer Clark.
4. viii. EBENEZER, b. Oct. 19, 1717, bapt. Oct. 20, 1717; resided in Mansfield, Conn.

Children of second wife :

4. EBENEZER<sup>1</sup> CLARKE (Richard,<sup>2</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rowley, Mass., Oct. 19, 1717, and baptized Oct. 20, 1717. In 1730 his father, Richard, died, leaving nearly all his estate to his youngest sons, Simon and Ebenezer, with the obligation to maintain their elder brother Richard during his natural life. Apr. 9, 1733, Ebenezer Clarke, being fifteen years of age, made choice of his brother John Clarke of Rowley as his guardian. The appointment was made by the court, but on Oct. 8, 1734, Ebenezer made a second choice of a guardian, Lieut. Thomas Lambert of Rowley, "to improve my Estate to the best advantage & to provide a good Master that I might lerne y<sup>e</sup> Joyner Tread." The next trace found of Ebenezer Clarke is in the land records of Stafford, Conn. Dec. 25, 1739, he bought from his brother Simon one-half of a tract of 100 acres of land in Stafford, which had been deeded Mar. 28, 1738, by John Collier of Grafton, Mass., to Simon Clark of Rowley, Mass.

If he ever resided in Stafford, his stay there was brief, as in 1741 he deeded his Stafford property to his father-in-law, Timothy Dimmick of Mansfield, Conn. These real estate transactions, on record in Stafford, furnish conclusive evidence of the parentage of Ebenezer Clark, which had evaded search to the time of their discovery. In Rowley records the name is spelled in some cases with the final e, which is omitted in the records of Stafford and Mansfield, but re-appears in later generations.

Ebenezer Clark married, in Mansfield, Conn., Sept. 2, 1740, Ann, daughter of Timothy and Ann (Bradford) Dimmick, who was born in Mansfield, May 23, 1724. Timothy Dimmick* came to Mansfield from Falmouth, Mass., about 1721, having purchased from Hezekiah King a tract of land "near the Willimantic River."

Oct. 5, 1741, Timothy Dimmick deeded to Ebenezer Clark, of Mansfield, 21 acres of land in Mansfield, presumably in exchange for the land in Stafford which Clark deeded in the same year to his father-in-law, Dimmick. This tract of 21 acres, increased by land deeded Jan. 23, 1748-49, by Timothy Dimmick to his daughter Anne Clark, formed the homestead on which the family resided during their residence in Mansfield. The location is closely indicated by descriptions in deeds, being "in the north-westerly part of the town near land of John Turner, Edmund Chamberlain, Elnathan Turner and Shubael Waldo." July 9, 1753, Ebenezer Clark conveyed land adjoining the preceding to Timothy Dimmick, who re-conveyed it to his daughter Anne Clark. These combined tracts, amounting to about 55 acres, remained in the possession of Ebenezer and Ann Clark till Apr. 25, 1777, when they conveyed the whole, described as situated "in the North west part of Mansfield on Willington line," to Ephraim Robbins. Little is found in the town records of Mansfield relative to Ebenezer Clark, excepting the preceding transfers of real estate and the births of his thirteen children. That he was a farmer is indicated by the following: "Ebenezer Clarks Eare Mark is a Slit In the top of the Right Eare. Entered here January y<sup>e</sup> 24th 1750/51." If he carried out the plan proposed in his petition for the appointment of a guardian in 1734, of learning "y<sup>e</sup> Joyner Tread," it is probable that he carried on the trade of joiner in addition to farming. No trace has been found of Ebenezer and Ann Clark later than their deed of land Apr. 25, 1777, to Ephraim

* His gravestone and that of his wife may be found in what is known as the "Gurley Burying Ground," in the west part of Mansfield. The inscriptions show that he died Dec. 27, 1783, in the 86th year of his age, and his wife died Oct. 9, 1788, in the 92d year of her age. The record of their marriage in Mansfield is as follows: "Timothy Dimmick, son of John Dimmick, and Ann Bradford, daughter of Mr. Joseph Bradford, married Aug. 15, 1723."

Robbins. Their deaths are not recorded in Mansfield, nor are their gravestones to be found there. Their children were born in Mansfield. The following list is taken from Mrs. Susan Whitney Dimock's excellent reprint of the Town Records of Mansfield.

Children :

- i. TEMPERANCE,<sup>5</sup> b. Apr. 21, 1741.
  - ii. SIMON, b. Mar. 11, 1744.
  5. iii. TIMOTHY, b. Dec. 26, 1745; resided in Rockingham, Vt.
  - iv. JOANNAH, b. Jan. 23, 1747-8.
  - v. WYCOM, b. Apr. 8, 1750. This name (which is nearly illegible in the record) is printed "Wilcome" in Mrs. Dimock's book, but the deed of Wycom Clark of Mansfield to his "Honored Father Ebenezer Clark of Mansfield," dated June 14, 1777, gives the correct name, that of his grandmother, Abigail Wicom. He quit claimed to his father his right in certain lands given to his mother Ann Clark by his grandfather Timothy Dimmick.
  - vi. ABIGAIL, b. Feb. 28, 1752.
  - vii. EBENEZER, b. Mar. 10, 1754; supposed to be the Ebenezer Clark who was in the "Lexington Alarm," serving 25 days; was private in the company of Capt. Experience Storrs of Mansfield in Col. Israel Putnam's regiment, from May 8 to Dec. 16, 1775, and lost his gun in the battle of Bunker Hill. He bought land in Rockingham, Vt., in 1780; admitted to the church there, Jan. 22, 1786; was appointed to assist in setting the Psalm and leading in singing, July 10, 1784; and made public confession of the sin of intemperance, Nov. 21, 1790.
  - viii. DANIEL, b. May 6, 1756.
  - ix. ANNA, b. May 9, 1759.
  - x. EUNICE, b. May 11, 1761.
  - xi. JONATHAN, b. May 20, 1763.
  - xii. MARY, b. May 7, 1765.
  - xiii. SOLOMON, b. Oct. 7, 1767; in 1797, resided in Paris, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

* The Woodworths of Lebanon were descended from Walter Woodworth of Scituate, Mass., through his son Joseph, who removed to Little Compton, R. I., and later to Lebanon, Conn., with his two sons, Joseph and Jedediah. Jedediah Woodworth of Lebanon, who served in Gen. Putnam's regiment in the campaign about Boston in 1775, was probably nearly related to Amy Woodworth.

found impossible to trace the exact line of descent. Timothy Clark was not quite nineteen years of age at the time of his marriage, in 1764, and his wife was probably about a year younger. It is not known where they lived for a few years after marriage, but it is the tradition among their descendants that their two eldest children were born in Connecticut, and the third in Grafton, then called Thomlinson, Vt. For a number of years before and after the Revolution the younger branches of many Connecticut families settled in towns in New Hampshire and Vermont, in and near the valley of the Connecticut river. This is especially true of towns in the northern part of Connecticut. Windsor, Lebanon, Windham, Ashford, Mansfield and Woodstock made notable contributions to the population of the growing towns along the northern frontier. Timothy and Amy Clark were among the first to join in the tide of emigration that was setting northward. They settled for a short time in Grafton, Vt. This was in the year 1768, when the town was almost wholly a wilderness. Here in April, 1769, their third child was born, said to have been the first male child born in Grafton. They soon removed to the adjoining town of Rockingham, Vt., which at that time had a population of 225 persons. Aug. 6, 1771, Timothy Clark, then of Rockingham, sold his real estate in Grafton, consisting of 40 acres of land in lot No. 9 in the sixth range, to Abner Souger. In town meeting, Mar. 25, 1772, he was chosen one of the assessors of Rockingham. At the same time it was "Voted to Let out y<sup>e</sup> Minister's Lott to the highest bidder. Tim<sup>o</sup> Clark bid it of."

Directly after the battle of Lexington, tidings were brought to the towns in southern New Hampshire and Vermont. A band of patriots was gathered from towns on both sides of the Connecticut river, and on the morning of Apr. 21, 1775, started on their hurried journey to the scene of conflict. In this band there were several prominent residents of Rockingham, and among them were Timothy Clark, David and John Pulsipher, and William Stearns. Remaining in Cambridge, these and other recruits were organized into a company under the command of Capt. John Marcy, and formed part of Col. James Reed's regiment, which took an active part in the defence of the rail fence in the battle of Bunker Hill. Timothy Clark held the rank of drummer in Capt. Marcy's company, took part in the battle, and served from May 7 to Aug. 10, 1775. (N. H. State Papers, Vol. 14, p. 104.) The town records of Rockingham show that he was one "of those that marcht to Ticonderouge."

June 23, 1777, he took "the oath of fidelity to be true to the United States of America." Mar. 3, 1778, he "took the oath agreeable to the Constitution." His name appears on the "Freemen's Roll" of Rockingham.

In town meeting, Mar., 1777, he was chosen tithing man, in Mar., 1779, constable and collector, and in Mar., 1781, petit jurymen. In 1799 he attended the Supreme and County Court. Although not a member of the first church, he was evidently an attendant with his family, as the inventory of his estate shows that he owned "1 pew in the North Meeting house in Rockingham," valued at $20. His administrator, Timothy Clark, Jr., conveyed, Mar. 4, 1815, to Andrew Dunn "a certain Pew in the meeting or Town House described as follows, it being the North West Corner Body Pew in the lower floor, said pew not numbered, said property belonging to the Estate of Timothy Clark deceased in Rockingham."

Feb. 5, 1777, Timothy Clark bought from Col. Benjamin Bellows, of Walpole, N. H., who was an original proprietor of many pieces of real estate in Rockingham, about 90 acres of land in Lot No. 10 in the 8th Range. The original deed is still in the possession of Miss Julia A. Clarke of Saxton's River, who is believed to be the only surviving grandchild. May 1, 1778, he bought from Colburn Preston 6 acres, being part of Lot No. 11 in the 7th range. He made his home for the rest of his life upon this land, which was situated upon the road leading from Saxton's River Village, along the east side of the grounds of the Vermont Academy, to the old town of Rockingham, and about one-half mile from the latter place. The house which he built, and in which he lived, is still standing, west of the road and at a little distance from it. He kept possession of part of this farm as long as he lived, and the inventory of his estate includes forty acres in Lot No. 10 in the 8th range, and an acre and a half in Lot No. 11 in the 7th Range. The accompanying facsimile is of a signature made in 1792.

The circumstances attending the death of Timothy Clark are somewhat obscure. In the winter of 1812-13 he went with his wife to Hancock, Vt., to visit his daughter Mrs. David Eaton. It is the tradition in the family that he left his wife there and continued his journey to northern Vermont or New York, where his son Simeon was serving in the 11th U. S. Infantry. If the correct date of Simeon's death at Burlington was Jan. 3, 1813, he may have gone to care for him or to secure his effects. In any event, he was taken sick in Hancock on his return from the army, and died there in the latter part of Feb., 1813. He was buried in the North Hollow Burial Ground in Rochester, Vt., where his grave, though not marked by a stone until 1904, has been identified at the right of that of his son Jonathan Rogers Clark, and close beside it. A slate tablet with a suitable inscription has been erected by a descendant, to mark both graves, an illustration of which appears in these pages.

After his death, his widow Ama (or Amy) Clark was taken home by her eldest son, Timothy, and cared for until her death, which occurred about Jan. 4, 1818, when expenses of the funeral were charged. Her granddaughter, Miss Julia A. Clarke, who remembers her slightly, says that she was buried in the cemetery back of the Old Church, but the grave was unmarked and cannot now be identified.

In addition to Timothy Clark's military service in Capt. John Marcy's company at Bunker Hill and at Ticonderoga, as already described, further service is shown in the volume of "Vermont Revolutionary Rolls," printed by the State of Vermont in 1904. He served from Sept. 27 to Oct. 20, 1777, in a detachment of a company consisting of five men, from Rockingham, "commanded by Lieut. Charles Richards in Col. William Williams' regiment of militia" (p. 43). Col. Williams' regiment is elsewhere described as having been engaged at this time "on an expedition to Bennington," and may have been present at the surrender of Burgoyne. Timothy Clark also served seven days as ensign in Capt. Jonathan Holton's company of Rockingham men, having marched sixty miles, "in the Alarm in Oct. 17, 1780" (p. 198). This service was rendered immediately after the Indian raid upon Royalton, Vt. Again, he appears in 1782 on the "Pay Roll of Capt. William Simonds' company, Col. Bradley's regiment, raised to assist the sheriff to go to Guilford," having served four days and marched forty miles (p. 608).

Timothy and Ama Clark had eleven children, whose births were recorded in Rockingham town records, Vol. 4, p. 52.

He was an active member of the Universalist Society in Saxton's River Village, and was one of the church committee in 1841. Nov. 23, 1792, he bought 100 acres of land in lot No. 13, in the 11th range, of Dr. Asaph Fletcher of Cavendish, Vt., to which he afterwards added about 25 acres, bought Nov. 14, 1811, of Roswell Bellows. These two purchases formed the farm on which he lived the rest of his life and on which he erected the cottage-house in which three generations of the Clarke family have lived, and which is now the home of his daughter, Miss Julia A. Clarke, and his grandson, Joseph Clarke. This is the second house built on the farm, the first house in which he lived for a few years having been situated a few rods north of the present.

June 17, 1844, in his old age, he conveyed his farm of 126 acres to his son Albert, who gave a bond to care for him and his wife Sarah during their lives and to furnish a suitable support to his sisters, Lucinda and Julia Ann, so long as they remained single.

30. DAVID<sup>7</sup> EATON (Amy<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rochester, Vt., Sept. 29, 1805, and died in Leicester, Vt., April 18, 1894, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harriet A. Alden, with whom he lived after the death of his wife in 1884. After marriage he settled in Warren, Vt., but in a few years removed to Granville, to care for his father, who had been stricken with paralysis. He was a prominent citizen, trusted by his townsmen, and was often called upon to settle business controversies and to act as executor or administrator of estates. He represented Granville and Rochester for several years in the Legislature. He was a Whig in politics till the formation of the Republican party, and afterwards a strong Republican, voting for every nominee of the party for the Presidency. His interest in the cause of freedom in Kansas led him to go to that territory at the time of the struggle of 1856 and 1857 and assist in making it a free State. In the spring of 1858, after returning from Kansas, he removed to Champaign Co., Ill., and resided there for seven years. In 1862, when his sons, Henry A. and Eugene E., serving in the Union Army, were severely wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, he went from Illinois to their assistance, and accompanied them to the hospital at Bedloe's Island, in New York harbor, and then to Brattleboro, Vt., where they were mustered out. They returned with him to Illinois and remained there until their recovery. The younger son was too badly disabled for further service, but the elder son, Henry A., re-enlisted, with his father's approval, and fell in the battle of Poplar Grove Church, Va. The rest of Mr. Eaton's life, after his return from Kansas, was spent in Hancock, with the exception of about three years in Rochester, Vt. He was a Universalist in his religious faith, and assisted in building the Church of that denomination in Rochester. His funeral occurred in the church in Hancock, and he was buried at the side of his wife and near his parents in the burying ground at Rochester North Hollow.

He was married in Hancock, Vt., Dec. 27, 1832, to Sarah Elmina Perry, who was born in Westminster, Vt., Feb. 4, 1813, and died in Hancock, Vt., June 17, 1884.

He lived in Westminster till his marriage, when he removed to Hancock and settled on the farm on which he lived for the rest of his life. His parents removed to Hancock with him and died there, his father in 1833 and his mother in 1853. Mr. Perry was a quiet man, attentive to his business and not desiring public office. 32. TIMOTHY CLARK<sup>7</sup> EATON (Amy<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Eben- ezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Hancock, Vt., April 9, 1809, and died at East Oakland, Cal., June 28, 1883. He entered on his life work at an early age and, as was often the case in those days, with scanty preparation through school or professional study. By what means he was directed to the ministry is not definitely known. Although of active temper- ament, he was less rugged than his brothers; and there was a tradition in the family that while he was suffering from what long threatened to be a permanent injury, caused by jumping barefoot on a sharp stub, which left fragments of bark in the wound, he made a vow with himself to serve seven years any one who would effect a cure. After many remedies had been tried in vain, he was taken to the celebrated Dr. Twitchell, of Keene, N. H., who gave him for twenty-five cents a box of ointment that in due time produced a perfect healing and delivered him from the fear of per- manent lameness. The cure was so simple and seemingly so dispropor- tionate to the affliction, that the impressionable boy looked upon it as a miracle and could do no less than pay his vow by entering the Lord's ser- vice. The story sounds like one made to fit the circumstances, for the young preacher's zeal and tireless energy were marvellous. To preach the gospel of God's unfailing and boundless love was his one desire, the service to which all his powers were consecrated.

He did not tarry long in his native State, but turned to the great and ever-receding "West." He preached wherever he could get a hearing. If a place afforded sufficient promise, he remained to organize a parish, and perhaps to build a church, always doing missionary work in the surround- ing region. The history of a dozen years or more is implied in the fact that his six children were born in as many parishes and in four States. The death of his wife, in 1860, gave new direction to his after labors. She was a woman of rare loveliness, of refined and Christian character, devoted to her husband and children. "She has left a dear husband," says the obituary, "to whom she commended her six dear children for earthly watch-care."

Most faithfully did he fulfil the sacred trust. He remained unmarried, and all his subsequent labors in the ministry were chiefly determined by the needs of his children. He returned with most of them to his kindred in Vermont, where for a while they were at school, and he journeyed up and down the State as he found opportunity to preach. The West, however, was their home, and in Illinois, in Iowa, and in Kansas, sometimes on a farm, sometimes in a town, he made a home for them or they for him, until at last he died while on a visit to those who had found their abiding place on the Pacific Coast. The affection with which he was cherished by his children to the close of his life was the imperishable witness and spontaneous return of parental love and devotion.

It was through his fine and sensitive nature, through depth and sincerity of feeling, through his exemplification of the "gospel of love," rather than through strong intellectual qualities, that he was sustained for more than fifty years in the Christian ministry. He was not a great preacher, in the ordinary acceptation of the term. He was not born for controversy, although he fearlessly declared the doctrine of universal salvation in countless places where the message was regarded with horror and encountered bitter opposition; and it may well be that his manner of presenting the new truths was none the less effectual and lasting. Even the tones of his voice, in his best days, were eloquent with appeal and persuasion. Few men were more loving or more beloved.

The possibilities of development from such humble beginnings as for many years it was his privilege to establish, may be illustrated by an incident, which at the same time is so characteristic of Mr. Eaton's methods and personality that it may close this account of his interesting half century as a clergyman.

In the early years of his ministry, while he was preaching in Chatauqua Co., N. Y., he held service at a place called Salem Cross Roads. He preached from the text: "We love Him because He first loved us," and of course set over against the current belief in the endless punishment of the wicked the doctrine of God's infinite love. At the close of his service a superannuated Methodist preacher in the congregation rose to his feet, trembling with wrath, and said, "That young man is an emissary of the Devil, he is the Devil's preacher, and it is a damnable heresy," with much more of a similar sort. Mr. Eaton made no extended rejoinder, but gave notice that he would be there again in four weeks and would preach on the scripture passage that the opponent cited in proof of the doctrine of endless misery.

There was present a Methodist class leader with his wife and four sons, from ten years of age down, and this man, after conferring with his wife, at the close of the meeting, invited the preacher to their house to spend the night. There was singing and praying and examining of the scriptures until past midnight, the preacher earnestly praying for greater light and a broader faith and more of the good Master's forgiving mercy and charity. In the morning he sold the class leader several theological books from the stock which he always carried, and when the four boys came to bid him good bye, he left in the hand of each a silver quarter.

At the end of the four weeks many people assembled, for it was a neighborhood in which opposition to the young preacher's views was intense, and it was thought he would be put down by the venerable clergyman who had previously attacked him. At the close of Mr. Eaton's sermon, however, the opponent, accepting the invitation to reply, instead of considering the arguments that had been advanced, indulged in a half-hour's tirade against the preacher, his denomination, and his doctrines. "He was so abusive," says Mr. Eaton in a letter written forty years afterwards, from which this account is chiefly taken, "that I made no rejoinder, but, asking the congregation to search the scriptures and judge for themselves, was about to close the meeting, when Mr. Pullman" (the class leader before referred to) "rose and requested the privilege of speaking. It soon appeared that in four weeks he had advanced far into the light of God's truth. For forty minutes he spoke in a calm, clear voice of the great change in his religious sentiments and of the joy and happiness he experienced in a knowledge of the nobler views of God—His moral government, man's duty and final glorious destination. He said it was the happiest period of his life, and the believers in the great salvation were encouraged by his conversion and by the influence he gave to our cause through his unsullied life and example. Under the blessing of God it was a great triumph for me to be the humble instrument in His hands of bringing him into our faith, whose sons also were influenced in forming their characters by my labors at that time."

The oldest and the youngest of the four sons became eminent preachers in the Universalist denomination, Rev. Royal H. and Rev. James M. Pullman, D.D. The other sons, Albert and George M., became even more widely known in connection with the palace car. "More than twenty-five years afterwards," continues Mr. Eaton, "I called by appointment at the office in the railroad station, and when I asked if Mr. Pullman was there, he heard my voice and exclaimed, 'I will furnish you with a ticket, for you gave us the first quarter of a dollar we ever had.'"

"How much influence I had in introducing the incipient stage of a religious character, or of laying the foundation of the millionaire, I know not. I could refer to many similar instances of persons embracing our faith, but none more significant in its happy influences."

The fit conclusion of this long story is a quotation from a letter written by Mr. Eaton from California only a few weeks before his death, in which he speaks of "the crowning excellence of my visit thus far," "the unexpected happiness of meeting, in San Francisco, Dr. J. M. Pullman and George M. Pullman, whose father's house was ever a welcome house to me in my early ministry," "these good brothers, endeared to me by the ties of unbroken friendship of more than forty years."

She early manifested an unusual musical talent. She spent her girlhood on the homestead farm and there drew inspiration from the sounds of nature, the songs of the birds and the murmur of the brook flowing through the valley near by. At a very early age she would sing the popular melody "Dixie," with surprising strength and correctness. At the age of nine she began singing in the choir of the Baptist Church at Saxton's River, standing on a pedestal made of hymn books. Even then, in her solo work, her voice was remarkable for its purity and sweetness of tone. Her talents as a singer made her widely known through the region where she spent her youth. Later years of hard study in Boston and elsewhere followed. Testimonials from many of the best artists in New England and other parts of the country speak in the highest terms of her ability as a singer. At musical festivals and conventions she was a well known favorite and will long be remembered for her clear, perfectly cultivated and admirably true, sweet voice.

From 1888 to 1898 she was soprano in the choir of the First Unitarian Church, Walnut Street, Brookline, Mass., doing much concert work in the meantime. She was a member of the famous Cecilia Club of Boston, and at their rehearsals she was occasionally assigned as soloist. Her voice blended so perfectly with that of her choir contralto, Miss Ellen Louise Woodbury, that they were long inseparable and were chums. Miss Woodbury is now a director of music in the Boston public schools. Miss Clarke's sunny disposition and personal attractiveness won for her a wide circle of friends.

Being naturally of a frail physique, her health became impaired. An attack of pneumonia left her lungs in such a weak condition that she sought the climate of Colorado, where she sojourned two years, followed by a winter in Florida. But her decline continued and, yearning for the old home and friends, she insisted on returning to Saxton's River, where she quietly fell asleep at the home which she so dearly loved, beloved and mourned by all who knew her.

ezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born near Saxton's River Village, Vt., Jan. 7, 1862. He spent his boyhood on the family homestead with his father and was educated in the public schools of Rockingham. At the age of nineteen he went to Boston and entered a private hospital, a branch of the Massachusetts General Hospital. He was connected with this institution for five years, and soon after leaving it began the study of the profession of dentistry. He was in the dental office of Kidder & Breed, in Boston, for a short time and later with Dr. A. J. Parker of Bellows Falls, Vt. In 1886 he entered the Boston Dental College, now known as the Tufts Dental College, and in 1888 began the practice of dentistry in his native town. He has continued in active practice to the present time with the exception of one year spent in Massachusetts and on the coast of Maine, and is now settled in Bellows Falls, with a branch office in Walpole, N. H.

His health has always been delicate. He has been twice married: first, in Sudbury, Vt., in 1863, to Harriet Horton Bardsy, who died after some years, and, second, in Paw Paw, Mich., to Jennie S. Shilling, who has since died. He has had no children.

Early in life Mr. Clarke became interested in the phenomena and philosophy of Spiritualism and was for many years a popular lecturer on the subject. Ill health compelled him to abandon speaking, but he has continued to write at intervals. He has occasionally acted as associate editor of the "Banner of Light," in Boston. During his life he has had many discussions, usually with clergymen, and has always emerged with credit. His writings embrace many poems, mostly ethical and spiritual, but he has never collected them in a volume. One of them, a song on "The Old North Hollow," appears in this record, having been sung at the dedication of the Memorial to Timothy Clark.

He was generally regarded by his fraternity as a leading exponent of their cult; was chosen as State Missionary by the Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania State Associations, and by the National Association to represent it at an international congress assembled in Paris under the auspices of the Universal Exposition of 1900, to which he went. His lecture tours extended over thirty-seven of the States and into British Columbia, and, although his cause was not a popular one, he was everywhere treated with courtesy by the secular press, whose editors often interviewed him and reported his lectures or opened their columns to his prose and poetical contributions. His articles have appeared in more than fifty American journals and some of them have been copied into English books and journals.

An instance of the force of his oratory when highly inspired, occurred at Paw Paw, Mich., in 1889. He was addressing an audience of 1500 people upon "The Equality of Human Rights," and they became so enthusiastic that three times they arose to their feet and cheered him vociferously. Among a hundred who congratulated him at the close, Old Sojourner Truth, a distinguished colored anti-slavery advocate, timidly came to him saying, "Chile, I'm an ole woman, and have been to lots of conventions, have heard lots of speakers, Garrison, Sumner, Phillips, and lots more," and then she added, with great vehemence, "and you beat 'em all!" But he was always too modest to push himself, and, if it be permissible to compare small things with great, it may be said of him, as Kipling said of General Roberts :

" 'E's little, but 'e's wise,

Washington. By his geniality, kindness, thoughtfulness and promptitude, he gained the respect and love of officers and men.

After the war he removed to the West and practised medicine for twenty-nine years in Sheboygan Falls and Sheboygan, Wis. He became Professor of Physical Diagnosis in the Milwaukee Medical College, president of the Wisconsin State Medical Society and Surgeon of the National Home for Disabled Veterans of the Civil War, a very large institution in Milwaukee. His remains were taken to Sheboygan for burial and were interred in Wildwood Cemetery, with military honors.

Dr. Clarke was a clear and forcible speaker, and author of valuable articles upon medical subjects. He had also a vein of poetry and had written occasional verses showing humor and poetical feeling. 61. CLARK BIGELOW<sup>8</sup> SHIPMAN (Betsy [Eaton] Shipman, Amy<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rochester, Vt., June 1, 1831. In early life he was a teacher; then a farmer in Royalton, Vt. In 1868 he removed to Newfield, New Jersey, where he was a market gardener till 1882, when, with his son, Henry Eaton, he went to Montana, reaching his present home in the Judith Valley, June 1. He was one of the first white settlers in that region. He was joined by his two elder daughters the same year, and several years later by his wife and the other children, when it had become certain that the settlement would be permanent. He took with him to his new home only a team, a few tools and provisions for a few months. His supply of provisions for the first winter was fortunately increased by two buffaloes which he shot Nov. 28 of that year, the first and last wild ones that he ever saw. Going on the mountain with a neighbor to cut poles he saw among the foot hills some animals which he suspected to be buffaloes. Though not much of a sportsman, he borrowed his neighbor's gun, descended to the neighborhood of the game and killed two with three shots. In order to save the meat, he and his neighbor skinned them during the night with dull jackknives. He has been a successful farmer and rancher, and beginning with little has reached a position of independence. He resides in Lewistown, Montana.

He was married in Royalton, Vt., Nov. 6, 1855, to Augusta Fanny Perham, daughter of John and Sally (Whitney) Perham. Her father was a farmer in Vermont.

WINIFRED AUGUSTA,<sup>9</sup> born in Royalton, Vt., Oct. 11, 1856; married in Lewistown, Montana, Dec. 5, 1887, to Nicholas Erickson, son of Sivert and Anna Margaret Erickson, who is engaged in mercantile business in Montana. WILLIAM ROLLIN<sup>8</sup> SHIPMAN (Betsy<sup>7</sup> [Eaton] Shipman, Amy<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Granville, Vt., May 4, 1836. When two years old he moved with his parents to Royalton, Vt., where his boyhood was spent on his father's farm. He attended district school in winter until he was fifteen, and in summer until he was old enough to be of service on the farm. From fifteen to nineteen he worked at farm work in the summer, taught school in the winter and attended Royalton Academy "off and on." In 1855 he entered Middlebury College at the age of nineteen, having acquired, by leading this healthful and industrious life during his youth, the blessing of a sound mind in a sound body and an unusual experience of real life, as well as a rare capacity for persistent mental labor. He partly supported himself through Middlebury College by teaching winters and working summers, and easily took a high rank in a class which included a number of men since distinguished. After graduating in 1859 he took charge of an academy in South Woodstock, Vt., and remaining there four years raised it from a decayed to a prosperous condition. The year 1863-64 he devoted to soliciting funds for a modern academy to be located in Vermont and controlled by the Universalist denomination of the State. He was successful with others in raising the needed funds, and in the year 1870 Goddard Seminary in Barre, Vt., was opened to pupils. Prof. Shipman has guarded the interests of the Seminary with watchful care, having been president of the Board of Trustees for many years and member of the Executive Committee from the beginning.

Early in 1864 he was offered and declined the "Walker Special Inspectorship" in Tufts College, but later in the year accepted the professorship of Rhetoric, Logic and English Literature, which he has held continuously to the present time. Since 1900 he has been Dean of the College of Letters. In February, 1865, he was ordained in Vermont as a minister of the gospel. He has never taken charge of a parish, but has supplied pulpits to a considerable extent in addition to his college work, and has also delivered many miscellaneous addresses. He holds the degrees of A.M. from Middlebury, 1862, of D.D. from St. Lawrence University, 1882, and of LL.D. from Tufts, 1899, and Middlebury, 1900. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and also of the Union Lodge, F. and A. M. of Middlebury, which he joined when in college. In January, 1905, he was chosen Chaplain of the Vermont Association of Boston.

In June, 1899, he was granted leave of absence for one year, which he spent in travel, giving three months to a Western trip and going twice abroad. His second visit to Europe, extending to Spain and Greece, was the special gift of many college friends.

He is a Republican in politics and a Universalist in religious faith. He has incidentally shown his kindly and helpful spirit and his unwearied industry by his work in gathering the materials for the history of the descendants of his grandmother, Mrs. Amy Clark Eaton, for this sketch.

He was married in Somerville, Mass., July 28, 1868, to Martha Frances Willis, daughter of Rev. John Howard and Charlotte (Gleason) Willis. After many years of illness she passed away, July 6, 1894.

72. HENRY AUGUSTUS<sup>8</sup> EATON (David,<sup>7</sup> Amj<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Granville, Vt., Nov. 8, 1838. He graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., and intended to study law. During the Free Soil contest, and soon after his eighteenth birthday, he responded to the call from Kansas and remained there until the issue between Freedom and Slavery was decided. Thoughtful and eager for knowledge from his youth, he secured a liberal education, largely by his own exertions, graduating with much honor from Middlebury College in 1862. He at once enlisted for nine months in Company A, 16th Vermont Volunteers, and was the unanimous choice of his company for captain. The regiment took part in the last two days of the battle of Gettysburg, occupying an important position in the line. There he distinguished himself by remarkable coolness and an almost reckless bravery, until severely wounded. At the expiration of his service, and even before he could move with safety, he zealously worked in Bethel, Vt., to raise a company for three years' service in the Seventeenth Vermont regiment, and was again elected captain. The regiment shared in the terrible battles of the Wilderness and was almost annihilated. Captain Eaton had been detached from his command to serve as commissary, and afterwards as aid on Gen. Griffin's staff. At his own request he was relieved to return to this regiment, of which he had command during the absence of the wounded colonel. At the battle of Poplar Grove Church, Virginia, Sept. 30, 1864, he was killed while leading his men. Not long before the battle he had been commissioned major, and shortly after, before his fate was known, he was made lieutenant colonel. His heart was with the defenders of the Union, and he was ready to die in the discharge of duty. Everywhere his faithfulness and ability secured confidence. As an officer, "his eye was quick and accurate; his self-possession never forsook him; his fidelity was unquestionable and his ardor never cooled." His name, with the names of forty other Rochester soldiers who gave their lives to their country, is inscribed on the soldiers' monument in that town, and the Grand Army Post is named for him. It is the testimony of all who knew Colonel Eaton that he was nearly faultless. He had no bad habits; he was pure in heart; he loved his fellow-men; he was as modest as he was brave. Such a character was worthy of the heroic age in which he lived and the great cause for which he died.

73. EUGENE EDGAR<sup>5</sup> EATON (David,<sup>7</sup> Amy<sup>6</sup> [Clark] Eaton, Timothy,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rochester, Vt., June 23, 1843. He was educated in the public schools and academies in the vicinity of his native town. He studied law, graduating from Harvard Law School in 1868, and was admitted to the bar in Rutland, Vt., in the same year. He was in the office of Col. W. G. Veazey, and assisted him as Supreme Court reporter, and after a brief practice in Kansas and Colorado, removed to Massachusetts in 1878. He opened an office in Boston and made his residence in Malden. He still resides in Malden, where he was a member of the Board of Aldermen in 1892 and 1893. He was married in 1871 to Lorette Avery, of Wakefield, Mass., and has no children.

He had the good fortune to serve as First Sergeant of his brother's company, A, Sixteenth Vermont Volunteers, which was one of the regiments of Stannard's brigade that made the famous flank movement against Pickett's column in the repulse of Longstreet's assault at Gettysburg, July 3, 1863. Near the close of that encounter he was fearfully wounded, a shell tearing out a portion of his neck and shoulder. But he clung to his rifle, approached his Colonel and saluted, and modestly asked permission to go to the rear. "You shall have it, my brave fellow," replied Colonel Veazey

SIMEON L. CLARK.

PROF. WILLIAM ROLLIN SHIPMAN, D.D., LL.D.

(who when he was Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic related the event to Col. Albert Clarke, who has contributed this sketch) "and if you are not able to go alone I will send a man with you." But the plucky sergeant thought he could go alone and he went, until he fell from loss of blood and was picked up by an ambulance. He and the captain were taken to the same hospital and were before long watched over and attended by their father, who had come on from Illinois. He did not recover in time to re-enter the service, and so resumed his studies.

He attended the State Normal School in New Britain, Conn., one term. In August, 1855, he entered the Green Mountain Liberal Institute in South Woodstock, Vt., and remained there nearly three years. In the spring of 1859 he entered Middlebury College, and graduated with his class in August, 1862, having been out of college part of the time engaged in teaching. August 30, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Co. E, 14th Regiment Vermont Volunteers; served at the battle of Gettysburg, July 1 to 3, 1863, his regiment holding the centre of Stannard's brigade; and was discharged at Brattleboro, Vt., July 30, 1863, on expiration of his term of enlistment. After recovering from typhoid fever contracted in the service he began the study of medicine at Burlington, Vt., in the Medical Department of the U. V. M., and graduated in June, 1865. He soon entered the citizens' hospital at Flatbush, L. I., as one of the medical staff. In May, 1866, he settled in the practice of medicine in the village of Gaysville in Stockbridge, Vt., and has remained there to the present time. He has been selectman several times and has held other town offices. He has been connected with the public schools as prudential committee and town superintendent, and was a member of the county board of education at the time of the change from the district to the town system. He represented the town in the legislature of 1872 and 1884, and was state senator in 1890.

NOTE ON THE CLARKE HOUSE IN ROWLEY, MASS.

There is some uncertainty as to when the old Clarke house in Rowley, an engraving of which from a recent photograph forms the frontispiece of this volume, was built, or by whom. It appears by deeds on record in Salem that John Clarke, son of Richard the immigrant, in 1712 deeded his property to his three sons—Jonathan, Judah and Richard. To Jonathan he gave the easterly part of the house he (John) lived in and the use of one half of the cellar.

To Judah he gave the land on which his (Judah's) house stood, and parcels of lands elsewhere.

To Richard he gave "one and one-half acres of land on which said Richard's house now stands."

Afterwards Jonathan deeded to his son Moses one half of the house in which he lived, situated on Bradford Street; also land lying westerly of Prospect Hill.

As the house now standing bears internal evidence of having been partly built at different times and for two families, it may well be the one built by John and occupied by him and his son Jonathan and later by Jonathan and his son Moses. If this is correct, the date of its erection must have been between 1675 and 1700.

It may, however, be the house built by Richard,<sup>3</sup> because it stands upon a  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acre lot, and this is the only lot conveyed by John to his children which answers that description. Richard was a man of growing means and family and may have added to his original house.

It is tradition in Rowley that the house of Richard, the immigrant, which was probably of logs and with a thatched roof, stood a few rods west of the present house and upon the same  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acre tract.

As Richard<sup>1</sup> appears to have disposed of most of his property to his children, John and Esther, before he made his will in 1673, and did not leave any real estate by will, the  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acre tract that he obtained from Thomas Elathorpe between 1643 and 1661 is beyond a doubt the lot on which the house now stands, although no record of the conveyance has been found.

If the house was built by Richard,<sup>3</sup> the time must have been prior to 1712. The heavy oak timbers, the massive chimney and fireplaces and the lean-to or low slant of the roof on the back were equally characteristic of the last quarter of the 17th or the first quarter of the 18th centuries; but some large bullets found by the present owner in a partition which he was changing indicate the earlier period.

INTERESTING FAMILY AND NEIGHBORHOOD GATHERING AT ROCHESTER, VT., AUGUST 30, 1904.

[From the Randolph (Vt.) Herald.]

An event of more than ordinary interest took place in Rochester North Hollow, Tuesday, Aug. 30, 1904, when the Clarke, Eaton and Goodno families gathered for a reunion and picnic. A general invitation had been extended to the people of Rochester, Hancock and Granville, and upwards of 400 assembled to participate in the pleasures of the occasion.

An interesting feature of the occasion was the dedication of a tablet in the North Hollow burial ground to the memory of Timothy Clark, a soldier of the Revolution, and Jonathan Rogers Clark, who lost his life in a charity bee in 1812. Long before the time appointed, a large concourse assembled at the cemetery. After an hour or two of pleasant intercourse, Col. Albert Clarke, secretary of the Home Market Club, Boston, called the people to order. The dedicatory prayer was offered by Rev. Frank E. Adams, of Rochester. Col. Clarke related the circumstance of finding the grave of his great-grandfather, only a year or two ago, and said that this gathering was the result of that discovery.

A quartette consisting of Milo M. Ball, Edward Morse, Will A. Chaffee and Fay Webber sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

Col. Clarke read the inscriptions on the tablet, and explained that, although the place where they were assembled abounded in memorials of departed friends, the present occasion was not for mourning but rather for rejoicing and for thoughts upon services and sacrifices for the country.

After the exercises at the cemetery, the company repaired to the picnic ground under the trees at the Four Corners, near by. Very complete preparations had been made by the people of North Hollow for promoting the comfort and pleasure of the company. A table 108 feet long had been provided, a platform for speaking erected, and arrangements for the care of horses had been made. Those who could not be accommodated at the tables disposed themselves in little groups at convenient points. Food was abundant, as nearly everyone had contributed something to the supply.

After dinner Col. Clarke called the company to order and expressed his thanks to all who had aided in the movement.

Letters were read from several who expected to be present but were unable to do so. Among them were Prof. W. R. Shipman of Tufts College, Frank G. Clark of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Dr. C. D. Clark of Minneapolis, Kansas.

Col. Clarke said that improvements were to be made in the cemetery. Timothy Clark was not the only Revolutionary soldier buried here. There were Amos Chaffee and Kiles Paul, and perhaps others. Rochester has the unique distinction of having furnished more soldiers in the Civil War than any other town of the same population in the United States. The soldiers' monument stands as a perpetual reminder. There were four only sons from Rochester who were killed in battle.

In introducing Mr. Thomas Bellows Peck, of Walpole, N. H., Col. Clarke said of himself that he did not know enough to trace out the line, but he did know enough to find the right man to do it. Mr. Peck said that it was rather a dangerous experiment to ask a dry genealogist to make an after-dinner speech, but he was not much of a genealogist anyway. He undertook to trace out his mother's family and made a book, and ever since had been trying to get people to buy copies. An ancestor possessing strong traits of character transmits them to his descendants. Timothy Clark was a man of such character. History does not tell us that he was a religious man, but he was a righteous man. He had the qualities needed by a pioneer—courage, enterprise and staying power. The same qualities have been displayed by his descendants. They have been a race of patriotic soldiers and pioneers. Many of them served their country in the war of 1812 and in the War for the Union, and very many have been pioneers in the settlement of the Middle States and the far West. Many of the settlers in Vermont came from Massachusetts and Connecticut. They left records behind them in those States, but brought none with them. Hence it is sometimes extremely difficult to trace their ancestry. The search for the ancestry of Timothy Clark, undertaken at the request of Col. Clarke, occupied nearly two years, and was extremely interesting. It involved much hunting in the records of towns in Connecticut. He proved to have been a native of Mansfield, Conn., and a descendant, through his father, Ebenezer Clark, from Richard Clarke, one of the first settlers of Rowley, Mass., in 1639. The family was honorable in itself and was connected by marriage with the best families in Northern Connecticut and Eastern Massachusetts. Timothy Clark was one of the first settlers of Grafton, Vt., and a few years later of Rockingham, Vt. He served, as a drummer, in a New Hampshire regiment in the battle of Bunker Hill, and with Vermont men at Ticonderoga.

Col. Clarke said that his brother, Dean, took so much interest in the occasion that he had written a poem for it. The poem was sung by the quartette to the tune of "The Old Oaken Bucket." It is an interesting coincidence that the tune chosen was written by Samuel Woodworth, a descendant of Walter Woodworth of Scituate, Mass., who was likewise the ancestor of Amy Woodworth, wife of Timothy Clark, and great-grandmother of Dean, the writer of this song, who did not then know the relationship. The poem was as follows :

THE OLD NORTH HOLLOW.

How dear to our hearts are the scenes of our childhood,
 When after long absence their sight we renew:
 The grand old Green Mountains, their mantle of wildwood,
 Whose varied rich colors enchant our fond view;
 A peaceful green valley where nature reposes,
 Where thrift and contentment in modesty dwell,
 As lovely as that which was promised to Moses—
 The dear old North Hollow we all love so well.
 The grand old North Hollow, the mountain-girt Hollow,
 Whose voices and echoes retain their old spell.

Our sturdy old grandsires discovered this Hollow
 And opened its fields to the light of the sun;
 Their labors our fathers were eager to follow,
 Completing the clearings which they had begun.
 No longer we see those dear, honest, old neighbors,
 They've gone like the trees which obeyed them and fell;
 But here are the scenes, and the fruits of their labors,
 The homesteads whereon their descendants now dwell.
 Ancestral North Hollow, our kindred's home Hollow,
 Our bosoms with pride for your pioneers swell.

'Twas here that our parents toiled hard and provided
 Good homes where we grew up to manhood's estate,
 And sad was the day when the children divided,
 And each for himself went to battle with fate.
 Those years of hard labor from March to December,
 To raise our own living and something to sell,
 Each farm boy and girl too will always remember,
 And to the grandchildren their hardships will tell.
 The stony North Hollow, the wall-fenced old Hollow,
 The tough-soiled old Hollow where no mamma fell.

Our parents believed in a school education,
 Tho' scant was the book lore possessed by themselves;
 They well knew that knowledge enables the station
 Of him who with brawn for his livelihood delves;
 And fondly they thought that some child rarely gifted
 Might shine where earth's great ones supposedly dwell;
 So o'er the long roads, often bleak and high drifted,
 The dear old red schoolhouse we poured to pell-mell.
 O high-souled North Hollow, the school-lighted Hollow,
 Of some of whose scholars Fame's tablets now tell.

And now to the scenes in the valley before us
 We bid a reluctant but cheerful "good bye."
 Ere long we shall go to the parents who bore us,
 Whose beautiful home is in realms upon high.

But ne'er we'll forget the dear lovely old Hollow,
 Where many long years it was joyous to dwell,
 And oft will return as the swift-flying swallow
 Comes back to the nest where he broke from his shell.
 O dear old North Hollow, the blessed old Hollow,
 The tears dim our eyes as we bid you farewell.

At the conclusion of the singing Mr. A. K. Harvey called for three cheers for the poem, its author and the singers, and they were given right heartily.

Rev. Ransom A. Greene was next introduced as one who had been pastor of one of the largest churches of Lowell for 27 years. Mr. Greene said he wished to express his personal sense of deep obligation to Col. Clarke for the work he has done. It takes great perseverance and patience to trace out an ancestral line. We are gathered today on sacred ground. It is sacred in a double sense. It is sacred because it is God's land, and sacred because of the associations connected with it. The interests of many of us are in other States. When vacation comes my face turns in this direction as home. Our forward look is not one of doubt and dependency. We look into faces, we clasp hands, we hear voices of the olden time. The future is one of hope.

Col. Clarke said that a census of the company indicated that 400 were present. Why cannot we consider ourselves the 400? By request, "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung again.

Hon. Eugene E. Eaton of Malden, Mass., was introduced, with a reference to his gallant service at Gettysburg. The occasion was one of great joy to him. He was glad that so many of his old friends were alive and blessed with prosperity. "I was so ignorant that I did not know the name of my great-grandfather, Timothy Clark. He was of the bone and sinew of the State—a sturdy son of the soil." He paid a high tribute to Col. Clarke, who had done much to educate the people of Massachusetts and of the nation in things pertaining to material prosperity.

Mr. Ernest Chase expressed the thanks of the assembly to all who had planned and helped to make the occasion so successful.

The audience joined in the singing of "America" and soon separated, with the hope that at no distant day the pleasant experience might be repeated.

CONTINUATION OF RECORD.

In making entries on these blank pages, it will be well to begin each by referring to the printed page upon which the record of the family concerned is given. For example :

and then note the birth, marriage or death, with date and residence, of the person, being careful to make the parentage unmistakable.

In this way each family can keep its own record complete and note changes in other branches whenever reported.

This continuation will be of inestimable value to future generations and will make possible and easy a more extended genealogy at some time hereafter.
